

The Center for Social Justice & Human Understanding, Inc. offers a wide array of lectures and programming to educate the college community and public at large on issues of civil and human rights. Our educators combine historical facts with present day situations to create awareness and empathy. Topics include The Holocaust and liberation with survivor testimonies; the issues that exist within our native communities and the preservation of their culture; the dark history of slavery and the aftermath of systemic racism and oppression of underrepresented populations; immigration myths and facts; and more.
