FICTION,

Why Creative Writing?

The study of creative writing as part of the Liberal Arts and Sciences/Humanities Emphasis, is designed to prepare students for a wide spectrum of possible study and careers including (but in no way limited to): advanced study in English and creative writing, editing, writing for creative markets, education, law, journalism, public policy, marketing and management. Your practice in critical thinking, expression of ideas, and awareness of people and cultures will prepare you for a number of careers and life experiences.